

A MARRIED MAN;

Or How the School-Committee was Outwitted.

Concluded.

"Oh! you innocent little darling!" laughed Rose, "I only wish I had your chance in

Mr. Willett's eyes. I'd make that wife of his jealous."

"It's a pity that the devoted attention of all the unmarried men in town will not suffice you, but you must stick to your married mate."

"Children are always crying for the moon, you know. Perhaps if Mr. Willett wasn't a married man he'd be no better than the rest, but, as it is, there's not a young man in town worth mentioning the same day."

All pleasant things must come to an end sooner or later, and this pleasant spring term was no exception to the rule. It closed in May, with a grand exhibition, but the night proved, as exhibition nights are prone to do, dark and rainy. Dame Nature, after being on good smiling behavior all the term, might be pardon for making this closing night a time for her most copious tears.

Ellie Broomfield wended her way to the exhibition under her father's escort, with the triple aid of her arm, lantern and umbrella.

"You make such a splendid beam, father, you don't seem at all afraid of wetting your overhaire, and leaving me the best walking."

"Thanks for the compliment, but I dare say you'll be leaving me in the lurch, and I allowing one of these same glossy-headed young men to walk home with you. It's the way of the ungrateful world, you know."

"But not my way," said Ellie, stoutly, "I'm engaged to you to-night, so don't forget to wait for me; your lantern, umbrella and general good care are along with me."

The hall was crowded to overflowing, in spite of the rain, and Ellie, from her seat away in front, did not notice that her father was called out before the exhibition was half over.

At the close, she donned her wraps, and as she spoke the good-bys to one and another of her school-mates, waited and watched for her father.

He did not come, though the hall was fast emptying. Two or three officers of company home she declined, still thinking he must be there, when up came Fred Peters, a crusty older brother Jack.

"Oh! Miss Ellie! I've been looking for you, your father was called out to serve on a jury,"

but he left his lantern and umbrella with Jack, and told him to see to you. But Jack, he'd been and offered his company home to Minnie

Warren before that, so he asked me to tell you to wait till he got back."

Ellie groaned in spirit, for Minnie Warren's home was away at the other end of long street.

Was there ever anything so inconsiderate as a young brother who, as for the first time to the window and interlarded the weather, or perhaps she might make the trip alone and unprotected, but it was raining in torrents, and fearfully dark. There was no alternative but to wait for Jack to play the gallant and done with it. Yet the crowd were gone, and the lamps were being put out; only one remained, when Mr. Willett suddenly came up the stairs and re-entered the room.

"You were still Miss Broomfield," he exclaimed, "I supposed everybody was gone. I came back for a book I forgot," and he picked it up from a table near.

A few words sufficed to explain Ellie's awkward dilemma. "Never mind," he said, "if you will accept my company home, I shall be happy to relieve you from the unpleasant situation." She accepted the offer in the same spirit in which it was made, and soon found herself on the way home with a lantern as bright, an umbrella as large, and an arm as reliable as her father's.

As for Ralph Willett, it was the first time since his coming to Monroe that he had waited upon a lady, but the opportunity was far from uncongenial. Indeed, the very lively tattle which his heart was beating, as for the first time Ellie Broomfield's hand rested on his coat-sleeve, convinced him fully of what he might have known long before, if he would have acknowledged it to himself—that he was hopelessly in love with her. And all the while she, innocent little thing, was chatting as freely and unsuspiciously as if he was her grandfather! How gaily he felt when he remembered that she and all the rest of the

she really herself or somebody else had read about in a book? It was about as puzzling a case as that of the old woman with shortened skirts in "Mother Goose."

Morning brought Mr. Willett to electricity her parents with his revelations. He made his case as clear there was no doubt of his honesty, but at his request they forbore to say anything abroad, until, two days later, in response to a telegram, down to Monroe came his mother, Bob Ayres, and the old gray-haired minister who had known him from a baby upward. They brought proof enough of the truth of Ralph's assertions. Bob Ayres generally taking upon himself all the blame of Ralph's deception, and giving an account in his graphic way of how it came about, Mr.

Ellie no longer hesitated to give her hand where, it was useless to deny, her heart had already preceded it.

Of course, Monroe was all ablaze. But everybody so high-spirited Mr. Willett, that seemed willing to estimate the case. The general sentiment of the community was the same expressed by Mrs. Watkins to Ralph's mother, and curiously enough, the same that

Bob Ayres gave utterance to, at the outset.

"Now, Mrs. Willett, if your son had come here calling himself a single man, when he was married, I could have overlooked it in him as long as I live, but can't here and calling himself married, when he was single, just to keep the girls from running after him, that's altogether a different thing."

Ralph went to the trustees, acknowledged his fault, and tendered his resignation, which they utterly refused to accept.

"No, indeed," said the president of the board, "either consider yourself bound to re-fracture, or he should have warned by the hand. "The crime of being unmarried is easily atoned for, and the worthy man put on such a knowing look, that Ralph colored up like a veritable schoolboy."

So Ellie did not go to Virginia, but her traveling suit was all ready for her bridal trip, the next week, and when Ralph Willett came back to Monroe to commence his summer term, it was indeed and in truth, as a married man.

bowels.

The President's message on the Virginia case contains no new matter except what relates to the details of Slick's resignation. It is, however, a succinct and plain account of the unpleasantness and as such will be useful for record and reference.

Back-Pay is treated in the Senate with but little if any more transparent sincerity than it recently met in the House. Senator Pratt's amendment to the bill, proposing to pay the Senators and members of the present Congress such monthly installments as will make the aggregate only $5,000 per annum for each, ought to pass—although we have small faith in its becoming a law. The simple truth is, that, with a few honorable exceptions, our representatives mean to take the chances and hold on to the money.

The country at large is to be congratulated on the resumption of business by two houses so thoroughly worthy as Henry Clews & Co. and Fisk & Hatch. Those who remember the brave and honest men taken by the former especially, in the panic of last fall, and that continued to pay out cash until its soundness was demonstrated, and suspended only under a pressure which no banking establishment could endure in the same proportion, will be glad to hear that all its old friends and many new ones stand ready to sustain it now.

Gen. Grant will probably withdraw Williams name from the Senate. To do this upon the compulsion of popular opinion will be a bitter pill for the President to swallow, yet will probably make a virtue of necessity and remove the objectionable Attorney General as a big blot from the country's weeping eye. At a late consultation with leading Republican members of the Senate Judiciary Committee the President was made aware for the first time of the real depth and significance of the opposition to Williams' nomination. He appeared also not a little surprised at the amount and damaging character of the evidence against his nominee which the Committee had gathered since it first took the matter seriously in hand. From what he saw and heard Grant evidently felt that he had made a blunder, and that the only way to avoid a perjury in the office of Chief Justice to cover the President's retreat, or whether he will take the risks of a free nomination we shall know if we wait long enough.

Gov. Dix's Message.
So much of our space is taken up with the message of the Governor that we must apologize to our readers for the lack of the usual variety, and also for brevity of comment. The entire message is replete with the good sense of Gov. Dix has shown to such an eminent degree during his administration. His warning against special legislation, the tendency of the erection of costly buildings to diminish proper expenditure for the objects of charity, the inquiry of the modern supply bill, and the loss involved in dear transportation, the Governor's words should receive prompt heed. But the best of the message is its plain, intelligent and convincing advocacy against inflation and of a return to specie payment. This part of the message is really admirable. If only its suggestions might prevail the serious loss that lies in the future of inflation, and be enabled to settle down to a firm and steady system.

That Face Down South.
The disgraceful failure of the two legislatures continues in Louisiana. Both convened on Monday—the Kellogg and the McEnery bodies respectively. As everyone knows the former is recognized as the legitimate body, and the latter a mere pretense. Gov. Kellogg's message presented a deplorable view of the state affairs. According to the Governor's exhibit the state is no longer able to pay the interest on its public debt without what would amount to a confiscation of private property. That process, were it adopted, would simply be equivalent to a starving man's gnawing the meagre flesh from his arms in order to supply the importunate demands of his stomach; it would be slow suicide. He further announced that the two and one-half millions in bonds issued in 1871 to build the Mobile & Texas Railroad, would not be paid, but that the state would probably pay any one who would come forward and give solid guarantees to construct the road; which is felt to be greatly needed. Gov. Kellogg said, concerning the opposition legislature, that if its members do not come and take the seats which are held open for them, they must assume the responsibility for the results of their conduct. This condition of things cannot be too deeply regretted when the natural abilities of Louisiana are to care for its own people, and raise invaluable products for shipment, are considered. Besides, the long session of the Legislature, and the long session of the Legislature, is a calamity in the life of the people suffering for the necessities of life. Bishop Wilmer of that state, now in Washington, consulted the other day with the President and with the Louisiana members of Congress as to measures of temporary relief from the debt. He said that he had seen the garden spot of the Union. How much longer is this play to hold the stage?

Logic and Eloquence.
Stephens has made a speech in the House on the Civil Rights Bill. It was the talk of a political sermon—eloquence, and the logical reasoning. He tried to ride two horses at once—a feat rendered all the more difficult in his case by the fact that the horses were not trained to go side by side. The first beast was the Jeffersonian doctrine that all men are created equal; and the second that colored men should be treated as equals. He tried to ride two horses at once—a feat rendered all the more difficult in his case by the fact that the horses were not trained to go side by side.

Mr. Stephens is less a curiosity because of the antiquity of his method of reasoning, than he is on account of what Miss Ingelow would call the "ancientry" of his style of eloquence. When he had plodded through a very long paragraph, of the self-deceiving Buchanan species to prove that nobody could understand a perfect sentence, he would stop and utter an attitude and divided the House between astonishment and laughter by an old-fashioned peroration. We would not mar its perfection by any attempt to summarize it; here it is, quoted with the tenderness with which we would handle the petrified remains of Demosthenes.

The old Jeffersonian Democratic Republican principles are not dead, and will never die so long as a free devotee of liberty lives. They may be buried for a period, as Magna Charta was trodden under foot in England for more than half a century; but these principles will come up like renewed energy, as did those of Magna Charta, and that, too, no distant day. ## FOREIGN.

Spain.
Resignation of Ministers.
MADRID, Jan. 6.—Diplomatic representatives of Spain at Paris, Brussels and Lisbon have resigned.

Things Quieting Down.
It is reported that the government will remove the Captain General of the Philippines, Gen. de la Roca. It is probable that Jose de la Roca will be appointed Captain General of Cuba. The disarmament of disaffected volunteers is going on quietly everywhere. Malcontents in Valladolid and Malaga dispersed before the troops arrived. The Madrid municipality has been reorganized, with Senor Carvajal at its head.

Metropolitan News.
Plymouth Church Again.
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Rev. Dr. Storrs and Biddington and Mr. Beecher have settled their differences growing out of Plymouth church proceedings in the case of Mr. Tilton.

The Brooklyn Frauds.
The Suppressed Report.
ALBANY, Jan. 6.—The Committee of Kings County Supervisors are here with suppressed report of the Commission showing up rascals of the Brooklyn Ring, which they propose to lay before the Governor.

The Great Unconquered.
Another Protest.
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—At a meeting of the Bar Association to-night it unanimously adopted and protested against the nomination of Williams as Chief Justice, and ordered copies of resolutions to be sent to the President and Senate.

The Unlucky Arapahoes.
Another Accident.
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—To-day, while the crew of the Spanish man-of-war Arapahoe were engaged in a drill, one of the boiler pipes burst, disabling the derrick's machinery. It will require two or three days to make the necessary repairs.

Beecher's Church.
Annual Sale of Pews.
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The annual sale of pews at Beecher's Church came off to-night. Mr. Beecher stated that on the result of the sale would probably be a virtual success, and he was able to take a trip to England. More was realized than last year. The second pew sale was fought by Henry C. Bowen, third by H. B. Claflin, fourth by Joe Howard, of the Star.

The National Capital.
Cutting Down.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The House Committee on Appropriations to-day cut down estimates $3,000,000, agreed upon aggregates $4,000,000, and cut down $4,000,000 heretofore appropriated.

In Cabinet session of two hours to-day, all the Secretaries being present, no mention was made of the Attorney Generalship.

The general opinion in diplomatic and official circles is that the Spanish republic is ended.

The Weather.
To-day's Probabilities.
For New England and the Middle States fresh to brisk northeasterly and northerly winds, with continued stormy weather, the temperature falling slightly by Thursday morning.

State Legislation.
SENATE.
ALBANY, Jan. 6.—The time of the Senate was occupied by a session in members, and the election of officers. The latter were the nominees of the Republican caucus. E. M. Madden gave notice of contest of Senator Allen's seat.

ASSEMBLY.
Mr. Huston was elected Speaker, receiving 74 votes, and Mr. Wood the other officers elected were those nominated by the Republican caucus.

UNITED STATES CONGRESS.
SENATE.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Mr. SUMNER opposed a motion allowing an American officer to accept a present from the Russian Emperor.

On debate upon the salary repeal Mr. FLANAGAN of Texas said there was guilt attaching to the salary repeal, and that the passage of the bill increasing salaries, he was guilty. He favored its passage, and voted for it out of pure motives, as he believed Congress had the right to cut said salary. He thought $7,500 not an excessive salary, and had remarked when the bill passed that the salary of the President was $25,000, and then he had not changed his opinion. He had drawn money (producing greenbacks from his pocket) "Here there, sir, this is my pay." (Laughter.) "I have not stolen that pay. I have done nothing that prevents you my conscience. I have endeavored to earn it." (Re-echoed laughter.) After the adjournment of the Senate he returned to Texas and was received by the legislature of that state, and not having to depend upon the salary of the President, he had not changed his opinion.
